

Global Cargo Risk Outlook 2017

By IHS Markit Country Risk,

Published: 25 April 2017

The risks cargo is exposed to during its voyage from the seller to the buyer is a challenge due to constantly changing perils. Such hazards vary in different areas around the globe, as do the types of and motives for crimes. Criminals targeting cargo in supply chains along with a piracy, terrorism and other political reasons for attacks remain a great threat in many parts of the world. This webinar provides an overview of risks in various parts of the world presented by six experts from the IHS Markit Country Risk team:

—John Cochrane – IHS Country Risk, Senior independent consultant, violent risks (webinar moderator): Global piracy

—Chris Suckling – IHS Country Risk, Senior Analyst, Sub-Saharan Africa: Africa cargo risk outlook

—Carla Selman – IHS Country Risk, Senior Analyst, Latin America: Cargo theft in Mexico and Brazil

—Anton Alifandi – IHS Country Risk, Principal Analyst, Asia Pacific: South China Sea cargo risk outlook

—Blanka Kolenikova – IHS Country Risk, Senior Analyst, Europe/CIS: Impact of refugee crisis on cargo movements in EU; impact of crisis in eastern Ukraine

—Dr Meda al Rowas – IHS Country Risk, Senior Manager, Middle East and North Africa: Cargo risk outlook in Gulf, Red Sea, Yemen and Libya

Please click here to access the recording and the slides.